Cleenol's Evolution Dispensing Systems allow for concentrated chemicals to be diluted at point of use. Unlike conventional systems, Evolution requires no water connections, plumbing or electrical supply.

Simple and Accurate Dispensing

The easy to use dispenser has a push/pull lever system which consistently delivers the correct amount of chemical concentrate directly into water in a trigger bottle, sink or bucket.

SAFE Systems

The product filled dispenser will only dispense concentrate when the spray bottle is locked into position. Both the sink and bucket operations have to be enabled before dispensing can take place. An automatic delay mechanism locks out the system for a time preventing overdosing. The units are lockable for safety reasons. Non-return valves and drip trays remove the risk of splashing surfaces or the operator.

Environmental Advantages

Accurate dispensing prevents overdosing and chemical wastage. Concentrated products reduce packaging, storage and transport.

Cost-effective

Controlled dispensing and consistent dilutions every time, give demonstrable savings in cost in use.

Flask Dispenser

The Evolution Spray Flask Dispenser has a purpose-built shelf for holding the trigger bottle in place whilst it dispenses the correct measure of concentrate product into the water-filled flask. A range of heavy-duty 750ml bottles and trigger sprays with chemical resistant labels are available for the selected products through this system. The dispenser will not operate unless the trigger bottle is locked in place.

Sink Dispenser

The Evolution sink dispenser is sited to ensure the delivery spout dispenses directly into the sink or bowl of water.

Bucket Dispenser

The Evolution bucket dispenser has an extension pipe which is installed at the right height above the selected bucket, allowing the product to flow directly into the water.

ALL AUTOMATIC DISPENSERS REQUIRE BATTERIES

Are you in for the long haul?

Delivering more for less is a constant pressure in the cleaning industry, and as such cost-in-use, also known as the real cost, is beginning to play a vital role in supporting business success.

When considering material costs, you should reflect on how much product is being consumed and the cost per unit. As an industry, we tend to opt for the lower priced product, which gives us an immediate cost saving. But if we adjust our strategy and look at cost, instead of price, how does this change our decision?

Cost in use is the overall expenditure on products, storage, maintenance and labour – it is the sum of our total resource usage. It is a more realistic approach to understanding what our cleaning operations are currently costing and, more importantly, how to reduce costs without compromising quality of service.

The big picture

The actual cost of cleaning products and materials typically accounts for around 5% of the workplace cleaning budget, with labour being approximately 75%. So although the lower priced products will give an immediate, small reduction in cost, these products may generate the need for additional labour, will need to be replaced more frequently and may not always achieve the required standards.

Investing in better cleaning equipment will provide great savings in the long term. In the short term the cleaning products may be slightly costlier, however, innovative, durable, fit for purpose products can provide cost reductions far greater than the initial price saving. For example, some of a business' biggest savings can be made through reducing the time taken to complete a task. Identifying products that are fit for purpose and perform well, combined with new innovation and best practice, will allow the task to be completed in less time, therefore reducing labour cost.

When presented with budget challenges, rather than just trying to reduce costs via short-term price reductions, complete a detailed review of your operations including working practices, products and equipment so that overall efficiency improvements deliver the savings required, whilst maintaining, or even improving, operational performance standards.

A Great Addition to any Cleaning Arsenal

What is Microfibre?

You've seen it everywhere; from mops to furniture, sportswear to towels – but what is microfibre, exactly? And what makes it so versatile?

The microfibrils used for cleaning, are made by fusing polyamide (nylon) and polyester, then splitting them under high pressure. This process creates myriads of tiny filaments that, when woven into a tool and wiped over a surface, enables it to lift and absorb even microscopically small particles, including bacteria.

While the size of the fibres is important, so is the volume contained in the tool, and the strength of the weave. Not only does the density determine how effectively the tool will be able to clean, but it can also help to reduce the volume of microfibrils entering the waterways – a serious environmental concern.

A quality professional microfibre will be manufactured to strict standards and can offer multiple environmental and health benefits that need to be factored into your cost evaluation, such as:

- Durability and re-usability – can be useable 300 – 500 times
- Minimal water-use, packaging waste and transportation
- Elimination of chemical hazards
- Reduction of cleaners' strain injuries caused by wringing mops
- Decrease of slip and fall risk by leaving floors drier
- Effective removal of surface contamination reducing the spread of infection

Microfibre cloths alone may not be a magic cure-all solution all cleaning needs, but the trade-off between their origins and what they can offset in terms of paper towel and cleaning fluid consumption makes them a useful part of any eco-friendly cleaning kit.

Colour-Coded Cleaning Explained

Colour coded cleaning is the process of designating colours to cleaning equipment in certain areas of a venue, reducing the spread of germs across environments and increasing hygiene throughout a business or workplace.

The four main colours used to separate out sections – such as public places, washrooms, kitchens and food preparation areas– are red, blue, green and yellow.

The practice became widespread in the late 1990s following the British Institute of Cleaning Science's BISC development of a universal colour code for use in the cleaning industry. The BISC recommends that all materials within a hospital janitorial cupboard should be colour coded, including cloths, mops, buckets, aprons and gloves. Over the years the BISCs has reviewed its guidelines to align with those from organisations such as the National Patient Safety Agency.

Where is colour-coding used and who uses it?

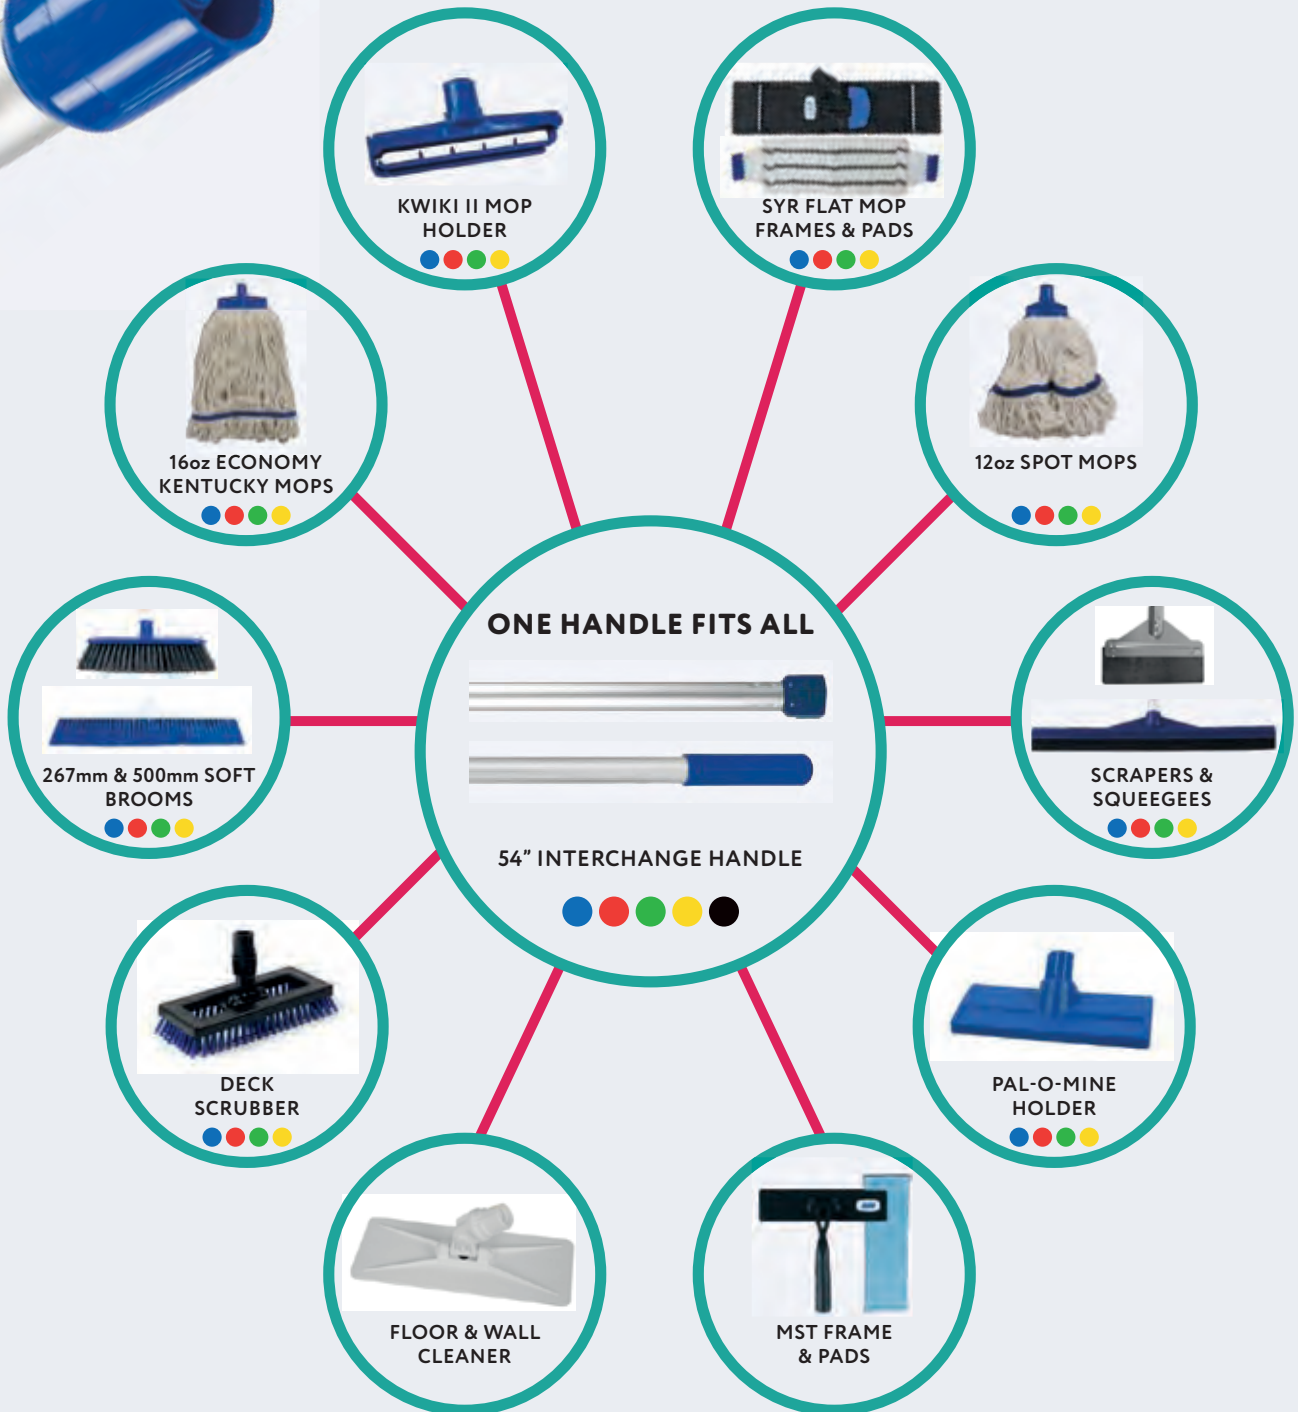

The colour coordination of cleaning products has been widely adopted by the catering industry, as well as offices, factories and the retail sector, as a simple way of increasing general hygiene and cleanliness. The colours used can vary from business to business and the system you choose is entirely up to you. Provided that staff are trained on the correct system, the risk of cross-contamination in the workplace is drastically reduced. There are, however, laws and regulations specifically for healthcare establishments that must be followed to ensure patient care.

As businesses are now subject to the assessment of an Environmental Health Officer (EHO), the use of colour-coded cleaning equipment is particularly useful. As the role of an EHO is to ensure public health and safety is being upheld, choosing to employ in your workplace a colour system that aims to make cleaning easy and efficient whilst ensuring surroundings are safe, healthy and hygienic, will confirm that standards are being met.

9 REASONS YOU SHOULD BE FLAT MOPPING

1. YOU COULD BE CLEANING TWICE AS FAST

An independent study concluded flat mopping cleaned 4,878 square feet per hour, compared to just 2,564 square feet per hour with a 24oz string mop head, nearly doubling efficiency. Combining flat mopping with other suitable equipment, like the LTS Evolve with its ergonomic operating height, can further reduce cleaning time, and require less strain, stress, and effort, compared to conventional mopping.

2. COTTON STRING MOPS ARE FULL OF GERMS

Microfibre flat mops are an effective way to clean for health and sanitation. Unlike cotton mops which naturally start to rot from first use, microfibre is synthetic and therefore does not deteriorate in the same way. The dense microfibre blend promotes deeper penetration for cleaner surfaces and, when compared to a traditional mop head, can reduce bacteria by over 90 percent.

3. CHEAPER" COTTON STRING MOPS ARE COSTING YOU MORE

While microfibre mops can cost up to three times the price of traditional cotton mops, they last for significantly more washings (up to 500 in some cases) and maintain their effectiveness much longer. Microfibre durability and effectiveness maximizes the ROI within the first 150 washings.

4. OF ALL THE TASKS JANITORS PERFORM, MOPPING IS AMONG THE MOST DANGEROUS

Mopping is the second-leading cause of cleaning-related injuries, resulting in not only pain for the individual, but also significant financial loss to organizations in time, production efficiency, and worker's compensation. If floor cleaning is a key service in business operations, it's imperative to reduce or remove the possibility of repetitive motion injuries by choosing the appropriate, ergonomically designed tool for the task at hand.

5. CLEANERS HAVE A 10LB WEIGHT ATTACHED TO THE END OF THEIR MOP

The most common sizes of wet string mops weigh between 16 and 24 ounces; this type of mop can weigh up to three times its dry weight when wet, often making cleaning jobs extremely hard on the wrists, hips, and back. A 16-inch microfibre mop frame and handle with a damp mop pad attached weighs just over 2 pounds, drastically minimising the potential for strain.

6. RSI LEADS TO AN AVERAGE OF 18 LOST WORK DAYS PER INJURY

As most of a custodian's time is devoted to floor care, there are ample opportunities to develop repetitive strain injuries (RSI) – the second leading cause of cleaning-related injuries. The term RSI encompasses injuries that affect bones, muscles, nerves, and tendons due to overuse. This can be incredibly costly for organizations, and dangerous for custodians. Reduced mop weight, combined with an ergonomic operating height, puts less strain on the worker's back and prevents fatigue over time.

7. FLOOR MOPPING TAKES UP 35-40% OF THE WORKING TIME IN MOST CLEANING JOBS

Microfibre mops are versatile, easy to clean, and have longer life cycles than other mop materials in the marketplace. If the user is properly trained with the S-motion mopping technique, microfibre mops can quickly cover expansive areas with significantly less repetitive motion to the hips. Investing in quality flat mopping cleaning equipment reduces the total amount of time required for floor mopping, which in turn can provide long term labour savings.

8. TRADITIONAL MOPS ARE ONLY GOOD FOR CLEANING THE FLOOR

The SYR flat mop frame has a unique folding design, meaning that it can be used to not only clean hard floors, but also stairs, back boards and some walls. This design also makes it simple to clean your pad as you mop, for a more hygienic performance.

9. CHEMICALS RELEASED WHEN MOPPING CAN CONTRIBUTE TO CHRONIC RESPIRATORY PROBLEMS

Cleaning with microfibre over traditional string mops can be significantly better for both human and environmental health. The microfibre used in our mop pads is made by fusing polyamide and polyester, then splitting them under high pressure, a process which creates myriads of tiny filaments that lift and absorb microscopically small soil particles (including bacteria), with little or no chemical requirement.

Cleaning Safety Flooring

Due to the nature of 'safety' flooring, conventional mopping will not, on its own, effectively clean the floor. The mop simply deposits dirt into the micro troughs of the surface and edges, which not only leaves the floor looking dirty, but will eventually take away most of the effectiveness of a safety flooring.

To effectively clean this type of flooring the use of some form of brushware to reach into the micro troughs is required. This can be achieved using what SYR describe as a heavy duty floor cleaning method - this requires the use of existing mops and buckets, but also a selection of brushes and a floor squeegee.

We suggest the following process:

- 1 Section off an area to be cleaned and put out warning signs.
- 2 Use the mop and bucket (with cleaning agent) to wet area – do not use the wringer yet as you will need to clean wet.
- 3 Depending on the size of the area, use the Scrator Brush or Deck Brush (both page 45) to scrub over the wet section, also using the Grout Brush (page 45) if required in tiled areas or where there are 90° angles i.e. floor meeting wall.
- 4 Wring out the mop and move over the scrubbed area, to take up excess water.
- 5 Using the Squeegee (page 46), at a comfortable arm's length, pull across the floor towards you, and tap to take off any excess water. Pass over again, slightly overlapping the previously cleaned area, and repeat until the whole floor area is covered.
- 6 Squeegee all the water into one area and then mop up the remaining residue.

STUNNING DESIGN, OPTIMUM EFFICIENCY

SYR SPACESAVER TROLLEY

Ideal for limited storage space. Light and manoeuvrable, they are designed for versatility, with a huge choice of add-on equipment. Several world patents are linked with these innovative trollies, one of them allowing buckets to be wheeled alongside the trolley, rather than lifted on and off. Spacesaver trollies were developed to fit in with every concept of mopping combo that SYR manufactures, and so can be easily tailored to meet businesses' specific cleaning needs.

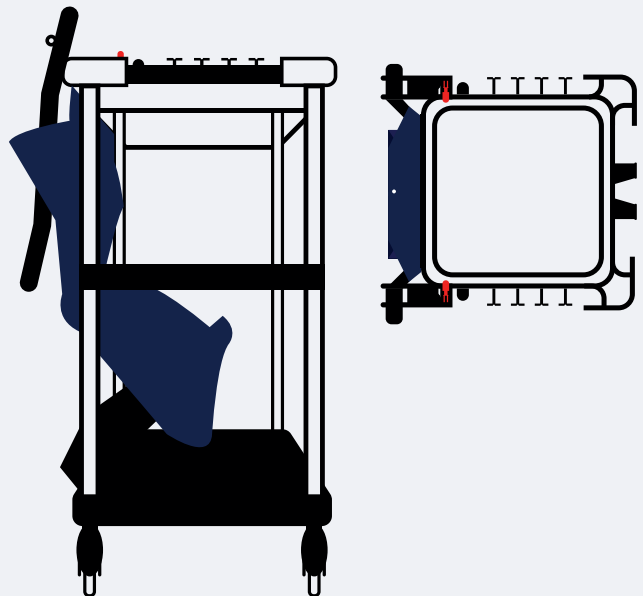

STANDARD BASE TROLLEY

Tailor a mobile trolley system to meet your specific needs. Solid base works as a low shelf.

HAC029 Each

Why Spacesaving?

When folded down, the base trolley achieves a footprint of just 51cm x 57cm, the same as an average mop bucket.
